A few years back, we had the opportunity to work alongside the Property Brothers. We were assigned a home, and other than a few inspiration images and key points to consider, we didn't know much about the family we were designing for. On the flip side, they didn't know much about us either. Talk about a blind date, and the ultimate measure of trust.

Call it kismet!

The hoodfan is clad in a large format porcelain tile, with the veining matched to the backsplash for a dramatic effect.
